difference between zero and nothing math forum

June 3rd, 2020 - the idea of nothing stems from this notion of a collection like eggs in a basket if you had no eggs nothing in the basket then this is analogous to the empty set the number of eggs in the basket is zero so we can think of nothing as a term describing the set itself whereas zero is a term not describing a set but an element" where nothing says everything suzanneberne net

June 1st, 2020 - ground zero is a great bowl of light an emptiness that seems weirdly spacious and grand like a vast plaza amid the dense tangle of streets in lower manhattan light reflecting off the hudson river vaults into the site soaking everything especially on an overcast morning with a watery glow this is the moment when absence begins to'
